* Varies from year to year.

 The second Monday

 The third Monday

If a national holiday falls on a Sunday, the following Monday is taken off instead. The week from 29th April to 5th May, which contains a series of holidays, is called Gōruden-uiiku (Golden Week). Some companies make the whole of this week a holiday for their employees.

1. N (place) e ikimasu/kimasu/kaerimasu

When a verb indicates movement to a certain place, the particle e is put after the place noun to show the direction of the move.

- ① Kyōto e ikimasu. I'm going to Kyoto.
- ② Nihon e kimashita. I came to Japan.
- ③ Uchi e kaerimasu. I'm going home.

2. Doko [e] mo ikimasen/ikimasendeshita

When you want to deny everything covered by an interrogative, you attach the particle mo to the interrogative and put the verb in its negative form.

- ④ Doko [e] mo ikimasen. I'm not going anywhere.
- ⑤ Nani mo tabemasen. I'm not going to eat anything. (See Lesson 6.)
- ⑥ Dare mo kimasendeshita. Nobody came.

3. N (vehicle) de ikimasu/kimasu/kaerimasu

The particle de indicates a means or method. The speaker attaches it after a noun representing a vehicle and uses it together with a movement verb to indicate his or her means of transport.

- ⑦ Densha de ikimasu. I'm going by train.
- ⑧ Takushii de kimashita. I came by taxi.

When talking about walking somewhere, the speaker uses the expression aruite. In this case, the particle de is not used.

- ⑨ Eki kara aruite kaerimashita. I walked home from the station.

4. N (person/animal) to V

When talking about doing something with a person or an animal, the person or animal is marked with the particle to.

- ⑩ Kazoku to Nihon e kimashita. I came to Japan with my family.

If doing something by oneself, the expression hitori de is used. In this case, the particle to is not used.

- ⑪ Hitori de Tōkyō e ikimasu. I'm going to Tokyo on my own.

5. itsu

To ask about time, interrogatives using nan, such as nan-ji, nan-yōbi and nan-gatsu nan-nichi are used. The interrogative itsu (when) is also used to ask when something will happen or happened. itsu does not take the particle ni.

| ⑫ Itsu Nihon e kimashita ka. | When did you come to Japan? |
|3-gatsu 25-nichi ni kimashita. |[I came] on 25th March. |
| ⑬ Itsu Hiroshima e ikimasu ka. | When are you going to Hiroshima? |
|Raishū ikimasu. |[I'm going] next week. |

6. ~yo

The particle yo is placed at the end of a sentence. It is used to emphasise information which the listener does not know, or to show that the speaker is giving his or her judgement or views assertively.

- ⑭ Kono densha wa Kōshien e ikimasu ka.
lie, ikimasen. Tsugi no "futsū" desu yo.
 Does this train go to Koshien?
No, it doesn't. You need the next local train.
- ⑮ Hokkaidō ni uma ga takusan imasu yo.
 There are a lot of horses in Hokkaido, you know. (See Lesson 18.)
- ⑯ Maria-san, kono aisukuriimu, oishii desu yo.
 Maria, this ice cream is very nice, you know. (See Lesson 19.)

7. sō desu ne

The expression sō desu ne is used to express sympathy or agreement with what the speaker has said. It is similar to the expression sō desu ka (see Lesson 2-8), but while sō desu ka is used by a speaker to acknowledge the receipt of some new information, sō desu ne is used to show sympathy or agreement with something the speaker already thought or knew.
